Abstract:

The Office of Public Relations facilitates communication between the university and community regarding university events, athletics, faculty and student accomplishments, research initiatives, and educational opportunities. One such form of communication is photography. This collection is comprised of photographs captured or collected by the Office of Public Relations for use in for university publications, press releases, and more specifically, The Statesman yearbook.

The media formats found within the collection broadly include both color and black and white photographs, photocopies, proof sheets, film negatives, and slides. The photographs’ subjects typically depict presidents, university campus events, student activities, buildings, classroom environments, and portraits of faculty, staff, and students. Collection materials are dated from circa 1900 to circa 2005, but much of the collection is undated. Creators of individual photographs are unknown unless the photographs are otherwise labeled. Additionally, many photographs are stamped with an Office of Public Relations identifier. This does not automatically mean that the public relations department is the creator of that photograph. In some instances the presence of the stamp signifies that the PR department is merely the owner of that specific copy of the photograph. Determinations should be made on a case by case basis.

Arrangement:
This collection is comprised of nineteen series organized alphabetically by subject. The exceptions are the proof sheet, slides, and negative series which were grouped based on the material type rather than the depicted subjects. Please see the series descriptions in order to note those which are arranged chronologically rather than alphabetically. The box inventory of this finding aid details the folder title, the possible creators of the records, and descriptions of the contents of each folder. On many of the photographs there exist stamps for the Office of Public Relations or Office of Alumni Affairs. Though this is listed in the Photographer portion of the description this does not mean definitively that the image was created by the Office of Public Relations or the Office of Alumni Relations.

Scope and Content Note:
The Office of Public Relations Photograph collection consists of photographs, photocopies, proof sheets, negatives, and, slides collected and produced by the Office of Public Relations. The photographs depict university presidents, campus events, student activities, buildings, classroom environments, and portraits of faculty, staff, and students. Many of the materials found within the collection are the original copies of photographs that appeared in The Statesman yearbook, The Echo, The Hornet, and other university publications. The collection is divided into nineteen series which are as follows:

Series I: Academic Departments, 1898-2004, n.d.
Series I is comprised of photographs pertaining to classrooms and non-traditional learning environments – such as fisheries, agriculture buildings, airplanes, etc. at Delaware State University. The series additionally includes offshoot programs of the academic departments. For example, the Cooperative Extension program, as a facet of the agriculture department, is found within series I.

Series II photographs pertain to the administrative branches and functions of Delaware State University such as the Board of Trustees, admissions office, Administrative Council, financial aid, maintenance, and public safety among many others. The depicted subjects include individual and group portraits, office environments, events hosted by administrators, and significant meetings and milestones.

Please note that photographs relating to the Office of the President are not found here. All materials pertaining to university presidents are found in series XIV.

Series III documents the activities and traditions of students and alumni. Materials related to alumni primarily relate to Alumni Association events, Miss Alumni ceremonies, and class reunions. Photographs of students depict broader student life and culture on the campus of DSU. These materials are comprised of candid photographs of students recreating as well as formal activities such as New Student Orientation, or presidential receptions for graduating seniors. Please note that additional commencement activities are documented within Series VII: Commencement. Additionally, photographs of student organizations may be found in series XIII.
Series IV encompasses photographic materials portraying sports at DSU. The records predominately depict organized events of the Athletics Department such as awards ceremonies and group portraits of athletic teams. The most prominent sport found hereunder is football but the series also includes discontinued sports such as swimming and wrestling.

Series V contains photographic materials relating to the presentation of financial grants to the broader university by corporations like Mobil Oil, General Motors, and Honeywell, as well as scholastic achievement award ceremonies held in honor of individuals.

Series VI encompasses photographic records of campus buildings and the evolving physical layout of the university. The materials include aerial views of the campus, interior and exterior views of buildings, campus improvement projects, and the construction and dedications of buildings. Some of the buildings and landmarks depicted in the series are no longer present on campus. They are: Cannon Hall, Lore Hall, Jason cottage, Kent Apartments, Faculty Row, Alumni House, and the first Martin Luther King Student Center.

Series VII contains photographic materials depicting annual commencement. Aspects of the graduation ceremony that are typically captured include the processional, the president’s address, guest speakers, honorary degree recipients, and group portraits of graduating classes in front of prominent DSU buildings such as Conrad and Delaware Hall. This series is arranged chronologically.

Series VIII contains photographic materials related to convocation which is held annually each fall to mark the start of the academic year. The photographic records depict DSU presidents, faculty and students, prominent guest speakers, and musical performances of the band and choir. This series is arranged chronologically.

Series IX is comprised of photographs relating to renowned individuals invited to DSU. These materials include promotional portraits provided by the guests themselves or their agents, as well as photographs of the events surrounding the guests’ visits to DSU. There is a large assortment of notable performers, actors, and musicians who have spoken and performed at the university: Senator and Vice President Joe Biden, Reverend Jess Jackson, and civil rights activist Myrlie Evers. Further depictions of guests can be found in series VII and VIII as relate to commencement and convocation.

Series X exhibits photographic records of ceremonies held in honor of university employees. Such events include annual awards luncheons, testimonial banquets, farewell receptions, and the president’s dinner for retiring faculty and staff. Additional portrayals of faculty and staff can be found in series I, II, and XV.

Series XI contains photographic materials capturing special events including campus conferences, workshops, festivals, holiday celebrations, campus tours, and exhibitions. The series depicts both one-time events as well as annual traditions such as Martin Luther King Jr. day or Founder’s Day. The series consists of four sub-series and are as follows:

Sub-series i showcases concerts, plays, and related entertainment as performed by Delaware State University students. Materials include photographs of notable plays such as Beauty and The Beast, The Nutcracker, and Cinderella. Concerts and performances by prominent guests of the university can be seen in Series IX: Distinguished guests. For researchers interested in depictions of concerts involving the choir and band please see Series XIII: Organizations.

Sub-series ii consists of photographs related to annual Homecoming festivities including parades, football games, performances of The Approaching Storm marching band and color guard, the crowning of Miss DSU and her attendants, and various other alumni activities and concerts. This sub-series is arranged chronologically.

Founder’s Day is an annual celebration of the university’s founding in 1891 as the State College for Colored Students. Each year the founder’s day program takes a different form and theme. Nevertheless, the photographic record is likely to show the university president and faculty, honored guests, and performances by DSU’s gospel choir. Some years additionally included building dedications such as the laying of the cornerstone for the Education and Humanities Center in 1974. This sub-series is arranged chronologically.

Parent’s day is an annual event held during the fall semester in which the parents of students are welcomed to campus. The photographs in this series consist of depictions of luncheons and scholarship presentations. Images of particular note are photographs from the Parent’s day of 1959, which portray the Alumni Association entertaining the members of the Jason and Grossley family at the home of Mrs. Howard C. Stevenson in Dover, Delaware. This sub-series is arranged chronologically.

The crowning of Miss Delaware State College/University is an annual tradition in which one female is chosen to be a leader and representing voice for the student body. This series includes portraits of Miss DSC/DSU and her court comprised of elected female and, later, male attendants. More Miss DSC/DSU appearances can be found in series XII at the Homecoming parade and football game. This series is arranged chronologically.
Series XIII contains photographic records most commonly taken for use in The Statesman yearbook. Found hereunder are student organizations such as the Student Government Association, honor societies, sororities, fraternities, clubs, and musical groups such as The Approaching Storm and Gospel Choir.

Series XIV is comprised of portraits of Delaware State University presidents as well as photographic records of events hosted by the Office of the President. Events highlighted in this series include functions like presidential inauguration ceremonies and personal events like Dr. Luna I. Mishoe’s birthday. Many of the events annual events hosted by the president like the President’s Club Dinner, the President’s Scholarship Ball, and the President’s Garden Party feature students and alumni, therefore they can be found in series III “Alumni and Students”. Additionally, there are events hosted by the president for retiring faculty and staff these records are contained in series X “Employee reception and testimonials.” For more images depicting the faculty and staff of other administrative offices, see series I, II and XV.

Series XV: Staff, 1892-1986, n.d.
Series XV is comprised of staff portraits, the majority of which are dated prior to 1925 and depict prominent staff of the State College for Colored Students. Among them are Lydia P. Laws, Samuel L. Conwell, and Cora Warren.

Series XVI: Miscellaneous, n.d.
Series XVI contains photographs of unidentified people, places and events which therefore cannot be cataloged into the existing series.

Series XVII contains proof sheets that detail events, people and buildings of the Mishoe and DeLauder era of DSU. Proof sheets are made from contact prints which are produced from 35mm film negatives. They display images at their original film size in the sequence they were photographed and are used in an evaluator role to decide which images will be enlarged. Many of the proof sheets echo photographs that are already represented in the other series. This series is arranged chronologically.

Series XVIII: Slides, n.d.
Series XVIII contains photographic slides created and compiled by Drexel Ball, special assistant to the President. They were donated to the William C. Jason Library by Carlos Holmes, Director of News Services, via Beverly Charlot, Coordinator of Technical Services. The slides are reproductions of many of the photographs already contained within this collection and the Alumni Relations photographic collection. The slides depict the historically significant events, people, buildings, and publications in DSU history. The date the slides were created is unknown, but the original images from which the slides are derived are dated between 1901 and 1989. A DVD is additionally housed with the slides and contains digitized versions of some of the slides.

Series XIX contains film negatives of DSU people, places and events. Many, but not all, of the images captured on the negatives are duplicates of developed photographs found within the collection. Some of the negatives are in poor condition. Please handle with care. This series is divided by subject and arranged alphabetically.

Administrative History:

The Office of Public Relations serves to facilitate the exchange of information between Delaware State University and the community regarding university events, athletics, faculty and student accomplishments, research initiatives, and educational opportunities. Communication primarily takes the form of photography, newsletters, press releases, and blogs.

The first known mention of Public Relations can be traced to the 1943-1944 Delaware State College course catalog. According to the catalog, Public Relations was a standing committee on which faculty, students, and administrators served. Subsequent annual reports and course catalogs reveal that the Public Relations entity took on many forms and titles. Most significantly, in the late 1960s, it became associated with Alumni Relations to become a joint Office of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs. In 1980 the Public Relations department became a fully-fledged, independent office distinguished from Alumni Relations, Institutional Advancement, and all other “community services” which had previously operated together under mutual interests.

Beginning in 2005 the Office of Public Relations was subsumed within the Integrated Marketing department comprised of public relations, web services, and marketing. This change was a reflection of administrative restructuring within the university and led to a departure from the traditional role of Director of Public Relations and instead inspired the creation of the position of Director of Integrated Marketing reporting to the Vice President of Institutional Advancement. The Director of Integrated Marketing is responsible for the branding and imaging of Delaware State University. At this current time, Carlos Holmes, Director of News Services, is the individual responsible for “media requests pertaining to a need for expert input or information about DSU,” or public relations in the traditional sense.

The processing and rehousing of this collection has been made possible in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities: Exploring the human endeavor. In January 2015 the University Archives received a financial award [PG-52391-15] for the procurement of archival housings and the funding of an assessment by a conservator from the Conservation Center for Arts and Historic Artifacts located in Philadelphia, PA.

The Public Relations Photograph collection was initially processed by Emily Cottle, University Archivist, and Cale McAmmon, the first IMLS Archival Fellow, in January 2014. At this time the collection totaled 15 linear feet. The physical collection and finding aid were altered in April 2016 by Daniel DelViscio, the second IMLS Archival Fellow, following an accrual received in September 2015 from the Public Relations department.

The accrual resulted in the expansion of the collection to 28 linear feet and alterations in the physical and intellectual arrangement of the collection. First, the “Concerts and plays”, “Homecoming”, “Founder’s Day”, and “Parent’s Day” sub-series had formerly been outright series. Second, several series were added: “Staff”, “Miscellaneous”, “Proof sheets”, “Slides”, and “Negatives”.
